PERSHING ON WAY TO PARRAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
San Antonio, April 14.—That General Pershing is hurrying to Parral to take charge of the situation created by Mexican citizens springing upon American troops was the opinion expressed at Fort Sam Houston today. Major General Funston said that he had received no word from Pershing for three days and expects to receive no definite information on the Parral battle until the expeditionary commander is able to report the exact facts.

There will be considerable anxiety at Fort Sam Houston until the fate of the 150 cavalrymen engaged in the battle at Parral is known. Unconfirmed and unofficial reports indicate that they were caught in a trap, but whether they succeeded in escaping or are still surrounded is not known. Official Mexican advice states that the conflict was resumed Thursday night. If these are correct, the Americans probably found themselves besieged on all sides and decided to make a fight rather than run the gauntlet of snipers that would be emboldened by signs of retreat.

If Major Tompkins and his men were trapped in Parral, help may have reached them before this time, as entry into Parral probably would not have been made unless a supporting column were closely following.

The result of the Parral affair has been the cutting of red tape to permit free action to the army. General Funston has been given authority to take full charge of the situation. This will make little change at present, but will be of vast importance in case of serious developments.

TROOPS WILL NOT LEAVE MEXICO

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 14.—The United States will not withdraw its troops from Mexico. Provisional President Carranza will be notified within a few days that this government will not change its announced policy to "Get Villa." He will be frankly told that the present condition now in Mexico is a friendly one. But he also will be told that this government under no circumstances will turn over the task of capturing or killing the bandits who murdered American citizens in their homes in Columbus, N. M., to the Mexican troops.

This was decided at today's cabinet meeting. The entire Mexican situation was thoroughly canvassed. In the absence of details of the fighting at Parral, no decision was arrived at as to whether Carranza is to be held responsible. But it was decided that the official note sent to this government asking that the American forces be withdrawn, shall be answered in positive terms.

It is understood that the members of the cabinet agreed that General Pershing and his men can take care of themselves, no matter what may happen. They are well armed and reinforcements are at strategic points where they can be hurried to the scene if the Americans are attacked.

SUBMARINE ISSUE IS NOT FORGOTTEN

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 14.—Although the Mexican situation overshadowed the German controversy today, officials made it plain that the submarine issue is not to be dropped. There was no attempt on the part of the state department to minimize the tenacity of relations between the United States and Germany.

The state department will continue to gather evidence in the case of the Sussex as well as the Eagle Point, Berwindale, Manchester Engineer and Englishman, all of which met disaster with Americans aboard. The principal case is, of course, the Sussex, and that is the one around which the controversy really hinges. Germany in her reply to American inquiries through Ambassador Gerard as to the circumstances under which these vessels came to grief raised the question of fact in every case.

If the United States should accept the German suggestion of a mixed commission to determine these questions of fact, especially in the Sussex case, it was made plain that this inquiry would only be concerned with evidence as to whether the Sussex was actually struck by a German torpedo. There would be no arbitration of the question of the right of Americans to be aboard the Channel packet. A large portion of the evidence in the Sussex and related cases, however, in the form of affidavits, was sent over on the steamer St. Paul and has not yet reached Washington. Until its arrival the next move will not be determined. Further evidence is also awaited from the French foreign office, which according to cabled dispatches, has the name of the commander and the number of the submarine which attacked the Sussex.

When all of this evidence is at hand it will be weighed in the light of the German claims.

O'RYAN EXPECTS CALL FOR GUARD

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 14.—Major General John F. O'Ryan, head of the New York State National Guard, today said that he fully expected the National Guardsmen to be called to the Mexican border. He stated that the New York National Guard was recruited at the present time to its full peace strength, numbering more than 17,000 men. These 17,000 would be ready to take the field 24 hours after a call, he added.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the militia will be called on sooner or later," Major General O'Ryan said. "The Mexican population is hostile to Americans. With a large part of the United States mobile army in Mexico, and another great number of soldiers guarding the border, the state militia will be needed if there is any further trouble."

With over $100 tucked down in his jeans, James Durkie of Kingston hit town Wednesday night and started out to see the sights says the Albany Evening Journal. He was seeing them when Policeman Welch encountered him on South Pearl street. The policeman realized that the Kingstonian was in no condition to care for himself and took him in charge. Durkie slept in one of the second precinct steel cages during the remainder of the night.

Thursday morning he stated to Judge Brady that he more than appreciated the officer's taking him in custody, saying that he realized he would be penniless had he continued his course of last night. The magistrate said that was the way he should feel and suspended sentence in his case. Durkie had his money returned and left on the first train for Kingston.

MEXICANS MAY ATTACK PERSHING

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Los Angeles, April 14.—The Los Angeles Tribune today prints a story declaring that it has information to the effect that forces of General Carranza will make an attack on General Pershing's American expedition next Sunday morning. The first step in the attack, the Tribune declares, will be to cut the line of communication between General Pershing's headquarters and the base at Columbus.

The Tribune says the story is based on information received in Los Angeles yesterday by an American who stands high in Carranza's secret service work.

From the same source of information, says the Tribune, it has been learned that a confidential telegram from General Carranza to General Pershing, dated at El Paso, direct from General Carranza, stating that Mexican troops would start this (Friday) morning to intercept supplies of food and ammunition which are being sent from the border to the American troops now in the interior.

General Carranza is said to have declared that the refusal of the United States to withdraw troops has caused his determination to sever relations between Mexico and the United States, and to strike the first blow.

FIRE AT PALEN'S.

Burning Stairway in Livery Stable Called Out Firemen.
An overheated stove in Elmer Palen's livery on Broadway set fire to a staircase Thursday night shortly before 12 o'clock and resulted in an alarm from Box 74, corner of Broadway and Elmendorf street. John Erne, who was passing by at the time, noticed smoke issuing from the building and sent in the alarm to which the fire truck and Wiltwyck and Weiner Hose Companies responded. The firemen chopped their way into the walls and quickly extinguished the blaze with chemicals after about $100 damage had been done. George Avery, a lad who sleeps overhead and takes care of the office at night, was sleeping, unconscious of the danger, when he was aroused by William Kukuk, who conducts a lunch wagon next door.

While Chief Chipp and Fireman Louis Kolts, Jr., were driving up Broadway in the chief's wagon, between Hoffman street and Pine Grove avenue, the clip holding the shaft broke and the wagon fell on its side, throwing its occupants on the brick pavement. The chief wrenched his ankle and bruised his knee and hands, and was forced to return to his home. Kolts was uninjured. The wagon suffered little damage.

WILD RUMORS OF PARRAL FIGHT

By Telegram to The Freeman.
El Paso, Tex., April 14.—Fear of a general Mexican rising and attack upon American troops such as dyed crimson the plaza at Parral brought a new tension today to the already menacing situation that confronts the American expedition and the international relations of the United States and Mexico.

The military element in Mexico is again in the saddle. Official advices from Mexico City state that First Chief Carranza has arrived here from Queretaro on his way to Vera Cruz, whence he will proceed to Yucatan. He has issued a decree calling upon the Mexican people to show calmness in the new crisis that has arisen, but in Carranza's absence General Alvaro Obregon, his minister of war, and General Candido Aguilar, foreign minister, will conduct the government.

To the importunities of these leaders, both ambitious, is attributed the de facto government's demand for the withdrawal of American troops from Mexico. Observers on the border assert that with Carranza away and Obregon and Aguilar directing Mexican affairs the situation will not brook of long diplomatic negotiations.

Reports as to the battle at Parral, which began when "snipers" opened fire upon American soldiers who were obeying the request of Mayor de la Luz Herrera, to leave the town, were still conflicting today. Most of them were to the effect that one American soldier and been killed and twenty wounded and many Mexicans killed. One rumor had it that fully 150 Mexicans had been killed, but this is believed to be an exaggeration.

Closely following the news of the Parral battle came rumors that an American force had clashed with a body of Mexican troops near the town of Troya, on the railway between Jimenez and Parral. This rumor said that the Mexicans were mostly Carranzistas and that the Troya clash preceded the fight at Parral, the Mexicans hurrying on to that town and inciting the populace to attack the Americans.

Several Carranzista soldiers are reported to have been killed, either at Troya or Parral, but this report lacks confirmation. The Americans used a machine gun in the Parral conflict and this would undoubtedly cause heavy execution among the members of the mob that attacked the Americans.

Throughout the length of the state of Chihuahua the American troops are taking extreme precautions against attack. Their vigilance is reflected along the border. Only few automobiles venture out of El Paso and other border points without arms. Reports reached police headquarters today that Mexican snipers had fired across the Rio Grande at motorists following the trail along the river bank, but no one was injured.

"Can war be averted?" is the chief question asked on the border today. It has replaced the weeks old query of "How long will it take to capture Villa?" The fact that the American troops responded without hesitation to the fire directed upon them at Parral shows that a "shoot first and then ask questions" attitude has been adopted by the expeditionary force. This spirit may at any moment set diplomatic quibbling at naught and bring war with a rush, according to border observers.

Mexican official reports referred to the Parral battle as a "lamentable incident" but through Mexico there went today reports that the "gringos" were responsible for the clash because they had disregarded Carranza's warning against entering towns in Mexico.

No explanation has yet come from Mexican sources of the fact that the civilians of Parral were armed. More than two months ago the de facto government ordered the citizens disarmed and it was later reported that all pistols, rifles, knives and shotguns, had been confiscated by the Carranzistas.

Major Herrera of Parral is the father of General Luis Herrera, the Carranza officer who disappeared with 1,200 men from Chihuahua City and then turned up at General Pershing's headquarters where he pledged his aid to the American expedition. This "aid" did not result in the capture of Villa.

Word comes from Sonora that Americans have been advised to leave that state owing to the concentration of Carranza troops under General Arzulo Gomez. Several have heeded this warning.

Frances Evelyn, Countess of Warwick, Writes For Papers.

IS AN ETIQUETTE EXPERT.

One of England's Most Popular Hostesses Will Give a Series of Articles on the Charm and Dignity of Good Manners in Social Life.

It is announced that Frances Evelyn, Countess of Warwick, will write a series of articles on etiquette for newspapers. In her introduction the countess states:

"If parents were more with their children familiarly with all the details of etiquette would be inherited rather than acquired. While mothers are content to leave their little ones to others, boys will tend to become rough and self-conscious and girls will regard instructions as a lesson and resent it accordingly. I have made it a rule to have my children round me on every possible occasion.

"The tendency toward carelessness must be repressed by all of us, and etiquette has done much to add to the charm and dignity of life. We need more study of demeanor than do the French, Italians and Spaniards, for the Latin races have a natural grace that is only seldom found among us. The Italian peasant of the Maremma, the Spanish shepherd of the Asturias, will astonish you by his perfect courtesy, his instinctive knowledge of the right word, the appropriate action.

"We are rougher and more rude until we have been polished on the grindstone of polite custom or until we have traveled and lost our insularity.

"After all, our behavior is the reflection of our personality, and while, if that personality be unattractive, the use of etiquette will set it off to complete advantage, an aggressive personality cannot be made tolerable by any amount of perfectly correct action.

"Yet knowledge is power. I think it was Francis Bacon who said that the man who goes to a foreign country without a knowledge of its language goes to school and not to travel, and in the same way the men or women who seek the pleasures of social life without knowing either how to entertain or to be entertained miss the fundamental pleasures of intercourse."

FRANCES EVELYN, COUNTESS OF WARWICK.

Long have we praised and bought the hand made French lingerie, and long have the women of fashion depended on French hand work. It is only recently that the Madeira cret and solid embroidery have made inroads on the very secure position which the French work so long monopolized. Now all this is to be changed, for the Filipino work is as wonderful in execution as either of the other two ever pretended to be. Besides, the material is finer and the prices lower. The labor is cheaper, whether Chinese, Japanese or Filipino do the embroidery, and best of all, there is no duty on these garments. There is hardly a doubt but that there will be a great demand for the Filipino embroidery.

PUBLIC HEARING ON CHARTER

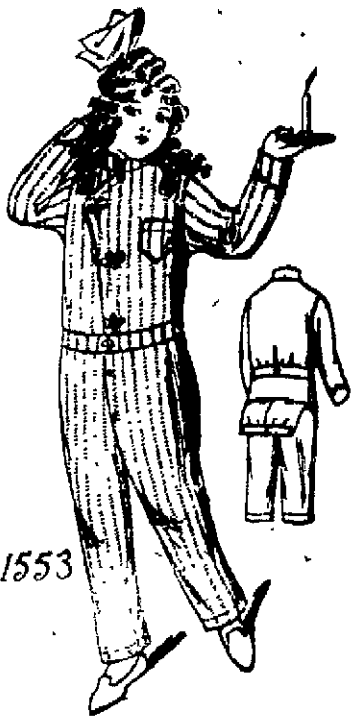

Mayor Canfield Calls For Public Hearing on Charter Amendments on April 18—Changes Made in Charter.

Mayor Canfield has called a public hearing on the charter amendments next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock preceding the regular meeting of the common council. The hearing will be held in the common council chambers at the city hall.

The bill makes several changes in the present charter. It provides that the city engineer be appointed by the board of public works; changes the hour of the annual meeting of the common council from 12 o'clock noon to ten o'clock in the forenoon on January 1 of each year; provides for the appointment of a clerk to the mayor who shall also act as deputy city clerk and to exercise such powers and perform such duties as the city clerk may direct.

The amendments also authorize the common council to hold stated meetings at least once instead of twice in each month, and makes several other changes which will be found outlined in the notice calling for a public hearing found in another column of The Freeman.

POLICE NEARING QUARTER CENTURY

Local Police Force Organized May 15, 1891. With Seven Members—Sergeant Murray Only Member Still in Harness.

Next month will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the local police force which was organized May 15, 1891, with Chief Hood and Sergeant Thomas J. Murray in charge. The patrolmen were James D. McIntyre, Thomas B. Cullen, George Roach, John Kierman and William Shuberg.

The bill creating the police force also specified that the constables who were serving at the time should act with the force. There were four constables at that time. They were Thomas Johnston, Michael J. Cahill, John Sullivan and "Jack" Barry.

Many changes have been made in the force during the passing years, and of the seven original members of the police force but two are still alive. Sergeant Murray, who is still in active harness and who is one of the most capable police officers in New York state, and George Roach, of the four constables, but one, Michael J. Cahill, is still living. Mr. Cahill when he became a member of the police force was appointed sergeant which office he held until he was injured some time ago while alighting from a trolley car on Broadway and which injuries led to his resigning. He was succeeded by Sergeant William F. Hanley.

During the quarter century that the police force has been in existence it has had but two chiefs. Chief Hood and Chief J. Allan Wood, who was appointed shortly after the death of Chief Hood. But three sergeants have served during the years since the organization of the force. They are Sergeant Murray and Sergeant Cahill, who retired and was succeeded by Sergeant Hanley. The past twenty-five years has also seen many changes in the personnel of the force until at the present time it numbers one chief, two sergeants, twenty-three patrolmen and a patrol driver.

Petitions in Bankruptcy.

Richard Baldwin, Jr., a Peekskill contractor who formerly was a partner in R. K. Everett & Company, contractors on the Catskill aqueduct work, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in New York, with liabilities of $86,422 and assets of $25.

Seth Walker, a Newburgh grocer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court in New York city. His liabilities are $7,955 and there are no assets.

The Fight in Movies.

Moving pictures of the Willard-Moran heavyweight boxing championship at the Kingston Opera House Saturday night are said to be the first perfect pictures of a world's championship combat ever shown. The widespread interest which attached to the actual combat in Madison Square Garden does not compare with the interest which is being demonstrated throughout the country in the pictures.

To Sing With Glee Club.

Negotiations have been practically closed for the appearance of Miss Mary Jordan, who was prima donna of the Century Opera Company, to sing at the concert to be given by the Y. M. C. A. Glee Club and chorus on May 25. The rehearsals are going steadily forward and indications point to one of the best concerts in some time.

Irving Lawrence, wealthy owner of a large number of tenements which are an eyesore to the Health and Fire Departments, shows his disregard for others in his private life. Payne, his wife's brother, arrives for a visit, with his bride, Muriel, and it evolves that the girl is victim of Irving's disregard for others in the past. Complications develop, during which Irving's wife, becoming aware that her husband's mode of living is not all it should be, misunderstands a situation between Muriel and he, and she denounces them. An estrangement between all concerned follows, during which a terrible fire breaks out in Irving's tenements. His little son is believed to be in one of the burning buildings, and Irving needlessly sacrifices his life to save the boy, after which a reunion is effected between Muriel and her husband.

ARE DOGS OR SHEEP THE MORE VALUABLE?

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, April 14.—Farmers throughout the state are watching with keen interest the progress of the bill by Senator Franklin W. Cristman of Herkimer county, which seeks to amend the town law with particular reference to dogs and sheep. The bill is aimed at dogs, which in many rural communities are a menace to the sheep-raising industry which has fallen off materially. The dog has a propensity to seem for injuring sheep.

The state department of agriculture says that in some of the towns of the state an annual expenditure of from $500 to $800 is made to pay for damage to sheep caused by dogs.

The measure by Senator Cristman provides in addition for the enforcement of the law relative to the registration of dogs by the state department of agriculture. Restrictions are placed upon the roaming of dogs in sheep pastures. County farm bureau agents have reported that the reason given by farmers as to why they keep few sheep is that roaming dogs ruin their flocks.

Notwithstanding the fact that mutton is selling at present for higher prices than ever before known in the history of the United States, and wool at the highest figure since the Civil War, the sheep industry in New York state continues to decline. There has been a great increase in the area of the public domain settled during the last decade and experts say that that territory is particularly adapted to the sheep industry. In spite of this there has been a decrease of 3,295 head since 1910 and 726 head during 1915. Additional statistics show that in the year 1867 New York state was credited with 5,373,000 sheep; in 1910 the number reported was 849,000, a decrease of more than four and one-half million heads since 1867.

Interesting is the fact that during the same period cattle have increased 384,000 head. Swine show no material change. Cattle and swine are not annoyed by dogs, yet if annoyed are able to protect themselves better and are more impervious to injury than sheep.

It is estimated by those who are versed upon the subject of sheep raising that there are about five millions of acres of land suitable for sheep raising and that upon them it would be possible to raise 10,000,000 of these valuable animals. A great part of this available sheep grazing land is not utilized for any profitable purpose and is said to be decreasing in fertility.

Senator Cristman in referring to his bill makes the following observation: "It is in every way desirable that the sheep industry should be thoroughly developed in New York state. In order to do so there is one thing that is absolutely necessary to be done; to protect the flocks from the ravages of dogs. The present laws are inadequate owing to the lack of authority to enforce them and the history of legislation on this subject shows that with few exceptions this has always been the case. "A careful examination of the laws of other states and of experiments in this state in trying out various propositions, point to the so-called registration and licensing law as coming nearer than any others in accomplishing the desired end."

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, JR.

HAMMOND SELLS RADIO TORPEDO TO U. S.

Washington, April 13.—John Hays Hammond, Jr., has given the country an example of the kind of Americanism which puts service to his country above personal gain. He has sold to the government all of the patents—123 of them—and the exclusive course of torpedoes by radio-dynamic forces, either from the shore or from aeroplanes, which will insure their striking their marks at a maximum distance of twenty-eight miles.

The price he will receive for his invention—$750,000—was fixed by a board of military and naval experts without bargaining on his part, and it is said on reliable authority to represent very little more than he has actually spent to bring his device to its present state of perfection.

In addition to turning his invention over exclusively to the United States, Mr. Hammond agrees to devote his time without pay to installing the apparatus.

John Hays Hammond, Jr., is the 26 year old son of the famous mining engineer of the same name. Naval experts who have tested his device in every way possible declare it will make the entire coastline of the United States practically invulnerable to attack from enemy battleships. Mr. Hammond was summoned before a sub-committee of the house and demonstrated the working of his apparatus.

A Call to Self Denial.

During Passion Week the Missionary Societies of the Methodist Church everywhere are requested by the general committee on missions to observe Passion Week by giving up luxuries and amusements for the purpose of raising funds to help the cause of missions, both in home and foreign lands. The Missionary Societies of St. James's Church have voted to observe these days and it is hoped every member will contribute to this worthy cause.

MUSIC FESTIVAL OCCURS IN JUNE

The Music Festival, similar to that given last year in this city, by the Kingston Symphony Society, which is to be given on the 5th, 6th and 7th of June, promises to far exceed in every way last year's festival. A big chorus, made up of Kingston singers and choruses from Catskill, Saugerties, Rhinebeck, Phoenicia, New Paltz and possibly other villages, will give Mendelssohn's marvelous oratorio of "Elijah," with the assistance of noted artists, and the Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Norman Coke-Jephcott. The first concert of the festival will be a Symphony Orchestra concert. The second day will be devoted to an artists' concert, the festival closing with the Oratorio of Elijah.

In the year 1845, the famous Birmingham Festival (England) people were on the lookout for a work that would add to their already great musical prestige. Mendelssohn was asked to write an oratorio for the occasion, and in response composed the "Elijah," one of the most splendid, dramatic and deeply religious oratorios known to the world. The tragic story of the prophet Elijah; the frightful drought, wherein we hear "How Cherith's brook is dried up;" the encounter with the worshippers of Baal, and the final return of the people to the Lord, Jehovah, gave to the composer a libretto that had marvelous possibilities, all of which he grasped with the power of the master. The oratorio was first given in 1847, under the direction of Mendelssohn himself. Right here, it is interesting to note, that Mr. Coke-Jephcott's home in England was but a few miles from Birmingham, and it was his privilege, before coming to this country, to know those who had been connected with the world-famous Birmingham Festivals, and brought the traditions of the conducting of Mendelssohn direct to his notice. This means that the chorus which will give this oratorio this spring, will have the rare privilege of instruction in the work that is almost without precedent in this country.

Arthur Herschmann, Baritone.
Arthur Herschmann, baritone, who was heard in Kingston about a year ago, at a complimentary recital given by Mrs. A. V. V. Kenyon, at St. Mary's Hall, then delighted all who heard his voice of unusual depth and power, added to a dramatic fervor and rare musical insight, that made the oratorio numbers which he sang of special beauty. Mr. Herschmann brings to his singing in this country the most favorable criticisms from Paris, Berlin, Cologne, Stockholm, etc., as well as the plaudits of New York critics. Doubtless his greatest musical achievement in this country is his appearance as soloist at the Bach Festival in Bethlehem to be given this spring, for at the Bach Festivals only the great artists are to be heard. In addition to the magnificent voice, the almost perfect art, and keen sympathy of the singer, Mr. Herschmann, brings to this Kingston Music Festival a most unusual interest and aid, for, having heard the Kingston Symphony Orchestra, he was so impressed with the musical work being done in this city, that he expressed a desire to do all in his power to further its development.

Miss Loskamp, Contralto.
While the matter has not been completely closed, it is fully expected that Miss Virginia Loskamp, contralto soloist at the Rondout Presbyterian Church, and who is so well known in this vicinity where she was heard so favorably at last year's festival, will be the contralto soloist for the oratorio.

Hardy Williamson, Tenor.
Hardy Williamson, English tenor, member of the "Century Opera Company," and now tenor soloist at the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, corner Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street, New York, comes with the highest recommendation, both as a tenor and as an oratorio singer. He had the honor of singing before King George and Queen Mary, at a special concert given, three years ago, in Queen's Hall, London. He was heard again at His Majesty's Theatre, in London, at a special performance, and in both instances, Mr. Williamson's singing was especially commended by the critics.

The society is not yet ready to announce the soprano soloist, but like the others, she will be an artist who not only has sung in the great centers of the world, but who will also be the best that Kingston can procure through the greatest care in selection. That such a galaxy of musical stars will appear at this year's festival is entirely due to the interest and aid of a friend of the Symphony Society, Miss Ella Osterboudi has kindly consented to act as accompanist for the rehearsals, which will add much to the progress to be made by

The Chorus
While there have been two rehearsals of the oratorio, many of the singers who have announced their intent on joining the chorus have been unavoidably unable to attend, but it is expected that at the next rehearsal there will be a large attendance of Kingston singers, especially of those singers who took part in last year's chorus. But, there are many other singers in Kingston, and in view of the splendid work being done outside our city, it behooves us to do even more than last year, to maintain our musical reputation. Every singer in the city, regardless of any church affiliation is cordially invited to join the chorus. There can never be any sectarianism, or religious exclusiveness, in such master-works as the "Elijah," an oratorio founded on the Old Testament, with its message as broad as Jewry, Catholicism and Protestantism. So all are asked to take part, and to do so at once. There is practically no expense to the singers, for while they are asked to pay fifty cents on receipt of their scores, they may, at the close of the festival rehearsal, turn the same, provided they are in

No other roofing has been imitated as much as Ru-ber-oid. You may be told that "all prepared roofings are alike" and that other roofings are "just the same as Ru-ber-oid" or "just as good and much cheaper." Remember there is only one

RU-BER-OID

—and that Ru-ber-oid is always spelled with one "B." The genuine—the kind we sell—has the "Ru-ber-oid" name (shown above) on every roll. If you don't see the Ru-ber-oid name, the roofing is not Ru-ber-oid. Ru-ber-oid is made on a base of the highest grade felt, waterproofed with a compound that cannot crack, run, or rot. It contains no coal tar, asphalt, wood fibre, paper or sand. Come in and get our prices.

Revival Chorus Invited.

All those who sang so acceptably in the great Revival Chorus this spring, and who enjoyed the singing are especially invited to join the Festival chorus, and it possible at the next Rehearsal.

Which will take place next Tuesday evening, April 18th, in Symphony Hall, in the Crosby building, corner Wall and John streets, beginning at eight o'clock, promptly. After this rehearsal, the names of those joining the chorus in the city will be announced. This is a rare privilege, as all who were in last year's chorus know full well, and one that should be grasped especially by the younger singers in the city.

Out-of-Town Chorus.

The chorus at Catskill, under the direction of Mr. Bagley, will be even larger and better than last year, which is saying a great deal, for the singers in Catskill, as in Phoenicia have been working in a musical way during the winter. The Phoenicia Chorus, under the leadership of Mr. Ennist, have been actively engaged in musical study and production this winter, and are most enthusiastic over the work for this festival. It is expected that Saugerties and Rhinebeck will also send valuable additions to the chorus, and it is hoped that the same will be true of New Paltz, in spite of the unfavorable train accommodations.

Creation Chorus Again.

All who enjoyed singing the Creation last year, will be pleased to know that at the Artists' Concert, the Kingston Chorus will sing two of the more celebrated choruses from that work.

Where to Get Information.

Any one wishing further information relative to joining the chorus here in Kingston, may address the secretary, Mrs. C. N. Reed, 42 Crown Street, or call up telephone number, 3012-W.

KINGSTON MAN'S CALIFORNIA FARM

Harry B. Willis Invests in 3,200
Acres of Land in the Santa Maria Valley—Forty Tons of Alfalfa
From 15 Acres, First Season.

The Ramona Sentinel, published at Ramona, San Diego county, California, contains an interesting account of the farming operations conducted by Harry B. Willis, a former Kingstonian. Mr. Willis is a son of the late George Willis, who was engaged in the coal business in Kingston for some time, and is a nephew of Mrs. Andrew N. Barnes of Albany avenue. The Sentinel says:

The Santa Maria valley is attracting the attention of some big men in forestry and in a business way. Several such men have become interested here within the last year, and when some of them get their business interests in other quarters arranged satisfactorily so that they will have more time to spare they will undoubtedly take an active interest in the general welfare of this community.

H. B. Willis is one of the men referred to. He bought 3,200 acres of wooded, virgin land about four miles nearly south of Ramona and located on it last May. He built a great bungalow on the extreme southeast end of the tract, in a natural park, near a creek. It is one of the loveliest spots for a home that you could imagine. When this was written Mr. Willis was making arrangements to build a house more central on his property for his superintendent.

A perpetual stream courses down the canyon and through the little valley where the home is located, but this water is not impounded, and five wells have been sunk and a pumping plant installed. Water was encountered at a depth of seven feet and the deepest one is down only 35 feet. Fifteen acres of land is cleared on the flat and from this Mr. Willis took 40 tons of alfalfa and oat hay, although he got it cleared and under cultivation late in the season. Mr. Willis believes in feeding his cattle hay and not depending altogether upon the range for their sustenance, although the grazing has been good. He has about 150 head of White Face and Durham cattle. He intends to try Jordan grass.

Out of the 3,200 acres 1,000 acres are tillable. He expected to clear and cultivate 150 acres last fall.
There are 12 feet of good soil on at least some of his land. Mr. Willis and his men have put up six or seven miles of fencing, besides cutting many nests, since last May. He has employed four or five men.

W. E. Trainer is superintendent of the property. He formerly had charge of the Talbot & Skinner ranch near Pueblo, Colorado. Improvements on the place will continue right along. Bridges will be built, more fencing done and the range grass will be cultivated.
Mr. and Mrs. Willis left for Mexico recently by way of New Orleans.
They expected to be absent two or three months. It will require that much time for Mr. Willis to get his ranch property in shape again.
After that he will probably make only a short visit to the country once every year.

Mr. Willis is president and general manager of the National Export Company, which raises cattle and hogs and sells hides. The company's property is located in Vera Cruz, and the main business office is in Mexico City. Mr. Willis is a native of New York and is a comparatively young man. Ramona is fortunate in having him for a resident, for he is an intelligent and progressive business man who will prove an important factor in the development of this mountain country of San Diego county.

THE DRAMA AS A POWER FOR GOOD

Eloquent, Entertaining and Educational Address by the Rev. John Talbot Smith Under Auspices of the Daughters of Isabella.

St. Mary's Hall was filled Thursday evening with those who had accepted the invitation of members of Court Santa Maria, Daughters of Isabella, to listen to a lecture on "The Popular Play," given by the Rev. John Talbot Smith. The guests were met at the door by Mrs. T. J. Hickey, Mrs. Frank Cox and Miss Winifred Sullivan, members of the society, who were assisted by Howard, Miss Flannigan and Mrs. O'Connell, officers of the organization, acted as ushers. During the seating of the guests there was pleasing music by an orchestra, Miss Schick, pianist, and John Schick, violinist, until the speaker and others took their places on the stage, made particularly attractive with palms and flowers. The trustees of the Daughters of Isabella, Mrs. J. W. Leary, Mrs. James Dwyer, Mrs. William F. Rafferty, Mrs. James Higley and Miss Nellie Sheppard, were seated on one side of the platform, while the lecturer, together with the Very Rev. John J. Hickey, the Rev. John H. Brody, together with Father Connelly and Father Gilmarin occupied the other side. Grand Regent Mrs. Leary welcomed the large audience in the name of the Daughters of Isabella, and said that one of the objects of the organization was the intellectual advancement of its members. In this as in all else the society considered only the best worth striving for and they felt that in the speaker of the evening they had indeed the best with them. Mrs. Leary then introduced the Rev. John Talbot Smith, who was given a most cordial welcome.

The speaker, whose command of English and dynamic power were exceptionally good, called attention to the lack of popularity of literature as such, and of even the drama as literature although such a state of affairs ought not to be. After quoting a conversation between Mr. Dooley and Mr. Hinnisey on "Literature," which was indeed humorous with a pith and point the lecturer prophesied that at last the drama was coming into its own. He then told graphically of the dispute in which the drama was held for centuries and the effect of the suspicion and disregard upon the writer and the actor and told the reasons for this prejudice. In spite of the condemnation of the drama and its deserving of such condemnation in the days of Greek and Roman power, it could not be abolished, so finally the Fathers of the Church determined to Christianize this power. Yet for years and years in the writings of the Fathers of the Roman Catholic Church there was found this bitter denunciation of the play, which originally intended for the pagan drama was taken to include the drama of the early Christian period. At last this mistake was realized and the Puritan element in both Protestant and Catholic Church was no longer able to hold the mass of the people with their prejudices against this mighty power for moral teaching. Today only the old sentiment remains as a sentiment.

The Rev. Mr. Smith then compared the drama with other forms of literature as to its fitness and cleanness. Humorously depicting the struggle of his own boyhood to get a chance to read novels, he called attention to the change in both prejudice and the novel itself since that day. Today the novel is so popular that no one thinks of condemning it though never has the novel been so thoroughly rotten as it is today, when it acts as the sewer for all mental and moral monstrosities of the minds of abnormal people. Formerly the essay, another form of literature, was full of dignity, expressing the highest thought of the world and leavening its ideas. Today it is the vehicle of the eccentricities of human kind. Poetry was formerly looked upon as almost an angel from heaven. Today such poetry as we have—and that scarcely worthy the name—rivals the novel in rottenness. In the press of the day we have a sewer, not alone for the evil thoughts but for the evil actions of men and women. Yet all these forms of literature are unquestioningly tolerated. After all the drama was said to be the cleanest of all, because trivialities and violence will not be tolerated upon the stage today. The obstinacy with which the drama has weathered all the abuse cast upon it was said to be due to four fundamental facts regarding every dramatic performance of whatsoever character: First, there must be a recognition of the existence of God. This is no longer necessary in novel, essay, poem or press. It must recognize the providence of God. Again it must recognize the justice of God; and finally it must be filled with love, which rules the world. The speaker then, with exceeding cleverness gave a play in outline, the outline such as would fit any dramatic production, and its truth was readily grasped by the audience which amidst its laughter over the realistic presentation of the speaker realized the underlying facts.

The lecturer closed his address with the statement that "the drama is a terrific engine of influence in the religion, the government, the sociology of today, and is the child and the grateful child of the Catholic Church. It is impossible to limit the impressions of a play." In illustration of the last statement, the Rev. Father Smith graphically described the awful lesson of the final power of materialism as seen in "The Parisienne," as played by Mansfield, which one realizes that one becomes like that which one loves, as depicted in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Finally he paid a splendid tribute to the good done the cause of Catholicism by Protestant managers, Protestant playwrights and Protestant actors in such plays as "Richelleu," written by an English Lord, "Henry VIII," as now being played in New York by Beerbom Tree, etc. Throughout the instructive and refreshingly fair-minded lecture was illumined with flashes of keen wit, and the audience was loth to let the speaker leave the platform.

Food Sales For Easter Gift.

Tomorrow is the day chosen by the three young ladies for the holding of three food sales for the purpose of raising funds to secure a Victrola for the Tuberculosis Hospital. The home keepers in the city may save themselves the labor of preparing cakes bread, etc., tomorrow and may at the same time be the means of hours of pleasure and entertainment to the shut-ins at the Tuberculosis Hospital, those patients who by the very nature of their sickness are peculiarly shut away from the activities that engage their fellow-men and women and also from the forms of entertainment that are their relaxation. Many otherwise dreary hours for the patients may be made bright and cheery with a Victrola, a fact which these young ladies have fully appreciated. It has further seemed to them that Easter would be an especially fitting time to present this gift, and so the sales tomorrow. Uptown, Miss Mildred Harrison will be in charge of a sale at the store of Alderman Charles A. Schermerhorn, in the building on Fair street, nearly opposite the opera house, which used to be Republican headquarters. Miss Jessie Ougheltree, who has been the moving spirit in the worthy enterprise, will preside over the sale at the Rufus Carl grocery store, No. 672 Broadway, and Miss Myrtle Weber will manage the sale at 364 Broadway, at the Shepard confectionery store. Each of the young ladies will have other assistants, and the sales will begin at each place at 3 o'clock. As the demand for the home-made food at these sales is always great, the young ladies will appreciate donations of homemade cookings, as well as the patronage of those wishing to purchase their wares. Gifts of money for the cause may also be left at any of the sales.

State Charities Aid Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Branch of the State Charities Aid Association will be held tomorrow, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the office of the County Agent, Miss Gertrude Bruyn, corner of Crown and John streets.

Great Value-Giving at Lay's Saturday Sale

Our Saturday Sale forms an object lesson in value-giving which is typical of this live-wire market. In many respects it will be more important to home, boarding-house and hotel-keepers than many sales that have preceded it. On our part, the event is a serious effort to increase the volume of business we do each week-end, but we cannot promise to "give something for nothing." Of course, wholesale meat prices must be taken into consideration when reading our price bulletin this week. In hundreds of cases almost prohibitive prices must compel the purchase of less meat, but we are doing everything possible to make prices lower for our patrons. We willingly cut down profits so that the amount spent will bring the greatest returns. And to our lessened profits we add a full, heaping measure of quality—always supreme here.

How the Town of Ladybird Was Depopulated

An Episode of May Day

By F. A. MITCHEL

What we now call the middle west was settled up in spots by very different peoples, and these spots, now cities or towns, show the differences to this day. One place will have been settled by refined people, and their descendants are refined; another will have been settled by a rough class, and its population will be rough today.

When one of these spots was in embryo—we will call it Eaglebird—its inhabitants were not naturally rough, but they were all men, and men without women will in time degenerate into wild beasts. No woman would go to Eaglebird because there were no women there. One or two of the men went east at different times to marry a sweetheart, but came back alone. When the girls learned that Eaglebird was exclusively a man town they invariably declined to exchange refined surroundings for a den.

There was a town not far distant from Eaglebird that we will call Ladybird. When the former was settled the latter had been a town for two decades. True, the Ladybirdians had run out to the region, men and women together, from Connecticut, where there was a college, and there was not a poorly educated person among them. But Ladybird had not been favorably located for trade, and its young men when grown sought busier fields of labor, while their sisters remained where they were. Instead of manufacturers, there were libraries, and the old folks and the girls were very intellectual.

Eaglebird had been settled for a land speculation. Ten men with money had purchased a tract for a song and secured others to join them in settling it by offering a share in the property. In this way some forty men, mostly young and all unmarried, were secured as emigrants for the enterprise. They built a town, but no more men came, and owing to the absence of women there were no children.

O'Brien, who was the originator of the scheme, one day called a meeting in the town hall, a building 12 by 18 used principally for poker parties, and thus addressed the gathering:

"Gentlemen, if we can't get some women for wives we'll have to give up this scheme and go somewhere else. I've a proposition to make. There are more than fifty single women in Ladybird. Efforts have been made to induce some of them to marry our fellows, but they have turned up their noses at us. What do you say to swooping down on 'em and carrying 'em off?"

The idea took like wildfire. Naturally, the youngest men were the most enthusiastic. Thirty men agreed to join the abductors, and no one of them was over thirty years old, while the great majority were not twenty-five. This looked well for the scheme, for the girls they were to run off had nearly all been born since the settlement of Ladybird and were therefore young.

The very next day after the proposal of the abduction scheme a lady and her husband who were driving through the country with a view to establishing an emigration scheme stopped at Eaglebird and asked for entertainment for the night. They were accommodated, and so long had it been since the men had seen a woman that they treated the lady as though she were a queen. Every man in the town offered to serve her. In the evening they asked if she would not talk to them. It didn't matter what she said; they only wished to listen to the sweet, soft voice of a woman. She consented, and all adjourned to the town hall, where the lady was given a seat on a platform at one end of the room. This is what she said to them:

"Gentlemen, I don't wonder you wish to listen to a woman's voice. You are all refined men, roughened by living without woman's quieting influence. What you need is wives."

There was a howl of response to this that broke in upon the address. One man whose voice drowned the others gave away the scheme to abduct the young Ladybirds. He was howled down for doing so, since it was to be expected that he had rendered it abortive. When some sort of order was restored the lady spoke again:

"I am not sure but what your plan may be advisable."

This drew forth a burst of applause. "Perhaps many of you," the lady continued, "who are educated men may call to mind how those men who settled Rome as you have settled Eaglebird invited their neighbors, the Sabines, to a feast and carried off their daughters. The women became attached to their husbands, and when their fathers and brothers attacked the Romans the women interposed and stopped the fight."

After another howl of approval the lady went on:

"I wouldn't advise so treacherous a method as inviting the Ladybirders to a feast. It is not necessary. Rather wait for some celebration during which the girls are out in a body. My husband and I intend to pass through Ladybird, and I will make inquiries as to a favorable time for your enterprise and advise you."

"Good! Bull!" And you won't give us away?" cried the crowd.

The lady declared that she would not give them away, and she was not sure but that her conscience would permit her to aid them. The meeting broke up with wild cheers for their visitor, aided and abetted, and the next morning, amid another round of cheers, the couple drove away.

In a few days a message came from the late visitor, who signed herself Elmbeth Harrison, stating that in a few days May day would be celebrated at Ladybird on the square around which the town was built and that at 4 o'clock in the afternoon the young people would dance around a maypole. The children would first do the dancing, then the young men and women. But since there were but two or three young men in the town and they either invalid or too spiritless to go away from such a dull place they did not count. Therefore it was expected that some twenty-five or thirty young girls would be dancing together, constituting a fine flock of Ladybirds to be seized and carried away.

Mrs. Harrison strongly advised preparing a portion of Eaglebird for their reception and that they be placed there together by themselves. No one should be forced into marriage; they should simply be held until married from choice or it was evident that they preferred to return to Ladybird.

That they had been fortunate in securing the services and advice of a woman was evident to all. Some who had believed that the scheme would be the ruin of Eaglebird began to think that a number of the girls could be induced to remain with them as wives. What such persons chiefly dreaded was that the captives would feel outraged at their abduction and that most of them, taking to flight, would make good an escape.

Preparations were at once begun for the raid in accordance with Mrs. Harrison's advice. One end of the town was set apart for the girls and beautified so far as the men could beautify it, though, to tell the truth, this consisted chiefly in cleaning up, whitewashing, etc. There was also a cleaning up of the prospective husbands. There were but two or three razors in the town, and these were in constant requisition. Several men were appointed hair cutters and did a lot of shearing. The clothes the men had had come in from the east and were got out and refurbished. Altogether after the polishing a very presentable set of young men were ready for courtship and matrimony.

May day opened bright and beautiful. All the teams in the town were harnessed, and some thirty good and true men started for Ladybird. At noon they stopped in a wood a few miles from the town for lunch and rest, but by 2 o'clock were again on the march. About 3 they sent out a mounted scout to watch for the time fitted for the attack and waited.

Over the waving grass and wild flowers, through the young leaves, came the sound of feminine voices mixed merrily. Every man started to his feet. In a few minutes the scout rode into camp and reported that the girls were "dancing about the maypole." O'Brien, who was leader, gave the order to start, and, advancing to the cover of trees overhanging certain houses of the town, they left their teams and, forming a line of battle, at a given signal moved forward in perfect silence upon the enemy.

Their advance was heralded by a "cream," but before they were discovered they were within striking distance. What surprised them was that instead of running away the girls sank down where they were, covering their faces and shrieking. So expeditious were the abductors that before the elderly folks of the town could even collect to observe what was going on every girl had been carried off and placed on a wagon.

Never was an abduction more easily effected. A few of the girls resisted as they were hurried away, but whether or no they deemed resistance useless their struggles were not violent. Once in the wagons, with a guard on either side, they remained quietly where they were, and the caravan set out for Eaglebird.

They had not been long on the way when a guard at one of the wagons went forward to O'Brien and said: "Some of the girls in the wagon I'm with are sickening."

"Sickening? Are you sure it's not hysteria?"

"Hysterics?" he laughed. "It's a girl's real sickness."

Then came other reports of the same kind, and presently the girls began to take note of their abductors, then to ask what they were going to do with them, and before long the train was much like a picnic party.

Well, to make a long story short, Mrs. Harrison on her visit to Ladybird had told of the predicament of a lot of nice young men going downward for want of wives, and after duly preparing the young ladies' minds revealed the coming raid. Gradually she won them over to permitting themselves to be abducted, assuring them that they would not be forced to marry unless they wished.

Within a few hours after the arrival of the train at Eaglebird there was a wedding, and before the day was ended there were two more. The number of spinsters each day grew beautifully less, and in the end but two of them returned to Ladybird.

Eaglebird is now quite a sizable town, comprising churches, schools and all the requisites of civilization. A few great-grandfathers of the present generation are still honored as having been among the band that played the town on a permanent basis by the raid on Ladybird. The latter town has disappeared, there being no trace of it left except a cemetery, in which has grown up a forest of trees.

Cause for Excitement.
Moss Johnson, colored, handy man around the factory, came in late one morning, appearing to labor under considerable excitement. "What's the matter, Moss?" asked the foreman. "Sick, sah?" "That's too bad." "Dat aint de worst ob it. I've got to have operation p'formed." "What kind?" the foreman queried. "Well, sah, de doctor says I've gotta hab mah asteroide tooked out."

Good advice is to "eat the best meats and groceries because they are less expensive than the doubtful kinds." This market strives to mean just this much to you: A day-by-day protection against inferior, impure foods. In meats especially you should be extra careful when buying. The value of wholesome meats depends upon how good they are. There is little comfort in knowing that certain kinds of meats are "cheap." But when you come here you get the tenderest, juiciest cuts at a trifling advance in price and you will be practicing true economy.

IF COMPANY M WERE CALLED OUT

Ready Within an Hour For Most Call, But Preparing For Field Duty Would Take a Few Days—Ranks Would be Filled Later.

Whether or not President Wilson calls out the New York National Guard for duty on the Mexican border, members of Company M are ready for service on short notice. While within ten or its full peace strength of 100 men, the local organization is in high state of efficiency and could soon be brought up to its full war quota of 150. Any orders for concentration of the militia would come through the adjutant-general's office but the militiamen say that only some great emergency could prevent at least two or three days' notice being given.

While the militia could be ready within an hour's notice in response to a riot call, any need for their services as an auxiliary force to the regular army would necessarily require more time for preparation. It is understood that in the event of the guard being ordered out, taxis would be requisitioned to notify and bring in the men. At the armory today, Captain Frank L. Meagher said that no instructions had been received as to the possibilities of any movement of the militia.

If the Third Brigade which takes in all the state outside of New York city and east of Syracuse, were ordered out, it is probable that Peekskill would be the concentration point. Mobilization would follow as determined by the mission upon which the militia should be called. The Third Brigade includes the First, Second and Tenth regiments. Major Chandler's battalion consists of Company I of Flushing, Company K of Poughkeepsie, Company L of White Plains and Company M of Kingston.

So far as the local situation is concerned, it is said this would be governed by the general orders of several years' standing. After the departure of the company to the points ordered, Lieutenant E. L. Cashin has already been assigned to remain at the home station to recruit the company to the strength required and would then join his organization. Some men would be designated here in the city to assume charge at the armory and continue recruiting activities to keep the company at its full quota in the field.

As any gaps occurred in the regiment, they would be kept filled by this means. This is far different than in the Civil War when regiments were decimated and left at fractions of their former strength, entire new regiments being recruited at home to make up deficiencies at the front.

Some of the equipment of the militia has been improved within the last year's agitation for preparedness. Particularly has this been true of the soldier's pack which is now carried on the back between the shoulders instead of in the "roll" which encircled the body like a buldge in the past. Throughout the state companies have been organizing in addition to their peace strength. Depot companies such as mentioned above are practically organized in all the cities having branches of the National Guard.

Some of the work of Company M at the Old Guard review has been most prolific in arousing an interest among young men in the city and vicinity. A number are now seriously considering enlisting and it is the present intention to recruit to the full company strength of 100 men and three officers and then have a waiting list to draw upon as occasion demands.

Maneuvers on the armory floor Tuesday night were highly praised by military men and awakened an enthusiastic interest among the audience which guardsmen believe will have an appreciable effect upon recruiting before the time for the annual summer camp. Whether or not that summer camp will be supplanted by actual border duty is a question soon to be decided at Washington but in so far as Company M is concerned its members are ready and willing to go if the call comes.

Another Quiet Day.

Today was another quiet day at the city hall and no cases were brought to the attention of Recorder Lang.

WASTED NITROGEN.

The tremendous waste that is going on in Europe is a lesson for us in many ways. The single item of nitrogen should make us think more seriously than ever about the conservation of that element in our own country.

The tremendous amount of nitrogen already wasted in explosives would serve to fertilize the whole of Europe for many years to come. If our farmers are to learn any one lesson it should be, "How can we get along without fertilizers?"

When a farmer burns his straw pile he wastes not only nitrogen, but valuable organic matter as well. We cannot hope to continue to remove plant food in the crop that is sold without putting anything back in the place of it. If every farmer would do his part in studying ways and means of conserving the nitrogen supply, as by green manuring, or, still better, by bare fallowing, by saving and using stable manure—in short, by utilizing every pound of nitrogen he raises, he would aid in preventing the necessity of improving fertilizers for several generations—C. E. Vail, Colorado Station.

PRUNING THE BLACKBERRY.

Means More Than Cutting Out the Dead Canes.

The proper pruning of the blackberry is very important if choice fruit is expected. Very few ever go any further in pruning blackberries than to cut out the dead canes. The proper pruning of it consists of four distinct operations—first, remove some of the superfluous shoots in order that there may not be too many canes to a hill; second, during the summer the buds of the remaining shoots should be nipped back in order to induce a stocky growth of the laterals; third, the laterals should be headed back the following spring; fourth, all old canes should be cut out after they have produced one crop of berries.

As a general rule, from three to six shoots to the hill are sufficient, according to the variety and fertility of the land. The shoots which are to be removed should be cut out as soon as they have started growth so that all of the food may go into those shoots to be left to produce canes. As soon as the plants reach a height of twenty-four to twenty-eight inches they should be nipped back by pinching off the tip of the shoot or bud. This can be done with the fingers or with a small pair of pruning shears. It is very important that the shoots be pinched off as soon as they reach the proper height rather than let them grow to a greater height and then cut back. A longer cane is inclined to bend over the ground unless some support is given.

A Ridge Smoother.

To keep the common two section harrow from leaving a ridge on the soil and thus confusing the operator of the corn planter who is following the harrow, I make use of the following simple device here illustrated, says A. Kirkley in the Farm Progress. Either a 1 by 2 or 2 by 3 timber or scantling may be used for the drag that is fastened to the harrow. This smooths down the soil and does not add to the load. It may be fastened to the harrow by means of a chain or by a rope. It should extend about two inches on either side of the harrow. Wire will not do as well as the rope or chain, as it will break at the turns. The stick should drag about fourteen to sixteen inches back of the harrow.

BITS OF FARM WISDOM.

Ashes or air slaked lime on the floors of the poultry house will assist in keeping the house free from mites.

Discard the animals which have failed at the end of the year to pay for their keep.

The seeds of rust and decay bring a harvest of loss to the farmer.

Warm quarters and the right ration will bring out the eggs.

A draft in the poultry house means roup in the flock. Prevention is the best method and much cheaper than the cure.

The most personal problem connected with the actual making of a fruit farm is the choice of varieties.

A well ventilated cellar is the best place to operate the incubator.

Look well after the early chicks. They will pay well if given good treatment; otherwise it is best to not have any at all.

All things considered, it pays better to grind feed for the dairy cows than for any other class of stock.

Do not neglect to go over shade and fruit trees and remove the nests of brown tailed moths and other pests that will destroy them later on.

Whole corn is a good feed for setting hens. Water, grit and dust baths should also be provided.

MUSIC IN MEXICO.

Every Little Hamlet Has a Band Stand of Its Own.

A HELP IN THE GAME OF LOVE.

To the Strains of Melody the Youths and Maidens "Play Bear," a Peculiar National Diversion That is the Correct Road to Matrimony.

Music plays a very prominent part in the social life of Mexico, not alone in the capital and other larger cities, but all over that picturesque land. A Mexican who can play no musical instrument is nothing less than a curiosity. There is no hamlet so insignificant that it has no band. Eight or ten men get together and decide to form a band. Having reached that decision, they go to the jefe politico, or mayor.

"All right," he will tell them. "You are to play Wednesday evenings from 8 to 9 and Sunday mornings from 9 to 12," and a record is made.

And during these hours, rain or shine, hot or cold, through famine, war and pestilence, as long as those men are alive and in the town, the band is in the band stand playing for such as choose to linger in the plaza, or public square.

About the evening concerts much of the social and domestic life of Mexico centers. It is at the concerts that many a youth and maiden first meet and begin to "play bear," a game indigenous and peculiar to Mexico, without which no self respecting Mexican couple adventures on matrimony.

The general plan of every plaza is much the same. In the center is the band stand. Immediately surrounding the band stand is an open paved space. Then there are flower bordered walks with plenty of benches.

Round the edge of the plaza, outside the trees and flowers, is another broad paved walk. Upon this outer walk are grouped the poorer Mexicans, the peons. On the benches sit the fathers, the mothers, the older folk, of the better classes. Round the walk that surrounds the band stand saunter tirelessly the youths and maidens of the same class.

The women circle to the left on the outside, the men in the opposite direction, on the inside. Thus every one sees every one else innumerable times during the evening. And in this melodious circling a youth sets eyes on a maiden who strikes his fancy—the game of "playing bear" has begun.

He looks steadily at his charmer every time they pass, and she, if she is pleased, glances at him in return. After they have passed each other ten or a dozen times he is at the edge of the procession in which he walks, and she has moved to the edge of the column of young women.

Then the young man, with a friend, withdraws to some cantina, or cafe, and writes an ardent note. On the next round his friend in passing slips it into the hand of her companion. Then they continue their strolling until the concert is at an end.

On the next concert evening the performance is repeated, only this time the young lady is the one who presents the note, which she has written in her home. If she rejects her suitor's advances he persists or desists, according as he is faint hearted or not.

If he meets with success he begins the next phase of the game. Each evening he will be seen opposite his lady's house, passing back and forth like a sentry walking his post. Even during business hours he will rise suddenly from his stool, seize his hat, rush frantically to his accustomed beat and for several minutes walk up and down, gazing reproachfully at the barred windows across the way.

As time goes on, after six weeks or two months, say, have passed, the girl is at last to be seen seated in the window. Then ensues another period of from two weeks to a month. The young man's walks gradually shorten, and one evening he is to be seen underneath the window, gazing mournfully upward for hours, much to the discomfort of passersby. But no one grumbles. All the world loves a lover—especially in Mexico.

After this stage father and son call formally on the father of the young lady and make a proposal of marriage.

When all the arrangements have been made the young man for the first time calls at the home of his affianced wife and meets her face to face, but never except in the company of a third person—mother, father or aunt—Youth's Companion.

When Solid Iron Floats.

Experiments have shown that if a ball of solid iron be lowered into a mass of liquid iron by means of a metal fork the ball at first sinks to the bottom with the fork, but that in a few seconds it will leave the prongs and rise to the surface, where it continues to float until it melts. The rising is explained by the expansion of the ball, due to heating, whereby it becomes bulk for bulk, less dense than the molten metal.

Friendly Criticism.

Pennib—Two of my latest poems appeared in the last issue of McDuff's Magazine. Inkerton—Yes; I noticed them. Pennib—Would you mind giving me your opinion of them? Inkerton—Well, to be candid, I thought the one was awfully simple and the other simply awful.—Indianapolis Star.

Method makes men win. Thus is success reduced to the science of correct calculation.

Convincing Evidence.

Sportman (having emptied both barrels at a rabbit)—There, Jacob: I'm sure I hit that one. Jacob—Well, it certainly did seem to go faster after you shot at 'im, zur.—London Punch.

Practicing At Literature

By ALAN HINSDALE

Wilbur Jones had in him a literary fervor that was seeking an outlet. He met Maud Erskine. It was springtime. They were together in the country with nothing to do. Jones was feeling for a literary career. Persons inoculated with the literary fever usually show the symptoms in verse. Jones, mistaking his literary ebullitions for love, veered between letters and poetry, both addressed to Miss Erskine.

Miss Erskine, not being able to throw an X ray upon Jones' heart, naturally supposed these effusions to be genuine lovelinking. Had Jones not felt them to be such himself they would not have been as commendable as they were.

Miss Erskine was not a beauty, but while Jones was writing verses and love letters to her he considered her at least comely. She sang ballads, and to Jones her voice was melodious.

Jones became separated from her for a period of six months. When they met again he was surprised to see a woman very plain of face and figure, and as to voice, hers was like the wind whistling through telegraph wires, though not so musical. He would not have believed that he could have been infatuated had it not been for the letters and verses. She read some of them to him. They were very good as literary productions, they bespoke genuine love. But it seemed to the author that they must have expressed the love of some one else.

Jones decided that what had been evolved must be permitted to die out as gradually as it had come. He went to another city, wrote Miss Erskine commonplace letters further and further apart and finally stopped writing to her altogether.

Jones' literary attainments became known in the place of his sojourn, and he was pointed out as an author. In order to divest himself entirely of Miss Erskine he adopted a nom de plume and a nom de hide in one. He became Alonzo Poindester. One who is attempting to hide from a sheriff or a woman is always looking out for discovery. Jones was no exception.

When Miss Philomena Andrews heard that Mr. Jones-Poindester was an author she secured an introduction.

"Mr. Jones," she said, "why do you authors hide under assumed names?"

"How did you know my name is Jones?" he asked, with suspicion.

"A little bird told me."

Jones got away from her as soon as possible and later asked one of his friends, "Who is Philomena Andrews?"

"She's not Philomena Andrews at all; she's Mrs. Susan Eldredge."

Jones trembled. Could it be that Maud Erskine had objected to being left in the lurch and had sent a detective after him?

Then it was that those letters, those verses he had written to Maud came up to some him with terror. What excellent evidence against him in a breach of promise suit! He was and had been for some time thoroughly conscious that he had been practicing as a literary producer, but what avail would such an excuse be when his effusions were read to twelve good and true (practical) men? Could he say his productions were simply literary bubbles? And if such a statement were believed would he be considered to have the right to practice for authorship on a girl who could not but take the effusions to be genuine expressions of his love for her? Suppose that he attempted to excuse himself on the ground that the literary fervor within him was so strong that he could not distinguish it from love? He would be laughed at.

One day the so called Philomena Andrews tackled him, saying:

"You might as well confess, Mr. Jones, that you are after me in behalf of Mr. Jenkins, who wrote those love letters to me."

"After you?"

"Yes. But I assure you I will not give up the incriminating effusions. He and I are merely excellent friends. When he began to scribble he asked me to play Beatrice to his Dante. Beatrice was a good wife and mother; so am I. His wife in her jealousy has been ridiculous. I made up my mind to disappear for awhile, hoping that she would come to her senses and the matter would be dropped."

"B-b-but," stammered Jones, "is it usual for literary men to gather inspiration by means of a fancied love?"

"It should be. How would artists get on without models?"

"Just so. I never thought of it in that light."

"Do be sensible. I know you have been employed to get evidence against my friend. Go back and say that you have been convinced that I have been simply his literary model."

"I'll do it. I don't know any one to present your case who is better equipped for the purpose than I."

Jones fixed this matter up satisfactorily, but he did not dare try to dispose of his own affair in the same way. However, on his return he heard that his literary love was engaged to a haberdasher.

This was a great relief to him. He brightened up and straightway resumed an interest in his literary work. But he had made up his mind that if it was safe for Dante to have a Beatrice it was not safe for Jones to have a Maud. But he has made a name by fancying himself in love with a real woman and writing his effusions to an imaginary one.

The Blind Players

We furnish a most unique attraction in "The Blind Players," who sing, recite and present a play entitled, "The Kerry Courtin'." giving an interesting exhibition of possibilities to the sightless world.

"Kerry Courtin'" shows the various occupations of the blind—loom weaving, typewriting, basket making, spinning. The acting when all the drawbacks are considered is little short of marvelous. Every movement must be measured by the counting of their steps.

Besides the play they give many interesting recitations and songs. They have an object in their work—to illustrate the sphere of musical and dramatic work as a new found occupation for the blind.

The Blind Players will be on the last day.

SCHEELE SOUGHT AS BOMB MAKER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 10.—While Dr. Walter T. Scheele, head of the New Jersey Agricultural and Chemical Company, was being sought in a dozen cities today on the charge that he invented the fire bombs placed on ships carrying munitions to the allies, a new line of investigation was opened to the New York police working on the German bomb plot which has already resulted in eight men being arrested.

The police learned that a truckman in Hoboken, N. J., took two small cases from the plant where bombs were manufactured to a South Brooklyn pier the day before $5,000,000 damage was done to the pier and two freight steamers moored there several weeks ago. The truckman was unable to remember the number of the pier, but the police are certain that the cases contained fire bombs and that they caused the conflagration which destroyed great quantities of ammunition.

August Heine, a truckman of Hoboken, told the police today that he had carted to a small tramp steamer in Brooklyn several large cases which he understood were to go to Copenhagen.

"These cases were marked fertilizer," said Heine, "but I'm satisfied that they contained gun-cotton and other explosives for the Germans."

Dr. Scheele has thus far evaded the thorough hunt made by the police and they fear his capture will prove a difficult matter. His secretary, Miss Ruth Foss, of Hoboken, will be questioned if she can be found. Her sister said today that Miss Foss left home two days ago and had not returned.

The chemical company's head is alleged by the authorities not only to have invented the bombs but also to have directed their "planting" where they could do the greatest damage.

"ONLY A COUNTRY GIRL"

Polish Church Young Folks to Give a Show in English.

The lovers of a good theater in Kingston take a great interest in the newest play, "Only a Country Girl," which will be presented on May first at St. Mary's Hall by the Amateur Society of the Immaculate Conception Church and for the benefit of the same church. This will be the first English show presented to the public in Kingston by the American born members of the Polish Church. All the actors and actresses in the play are ambitious and work hard to give perfect satisfaction to the public in Kingston.

Although there are two weeks time of rehearsing, the director of the play, P. McDermott, gladly expressed his assurance that the members of the cast are well prepared to present the play successfully even now. There also will be, between the acts, very interesting and novel specialties. Those who appear in specialties will be dressed in Polish national costumes. Good music will be furnished by Wood's orchestra and dancing will take place after the show. The play, "Only a Country Girl," an American comedy drama in four acts, is full of most amusing situations. There are nearly two hours of intense enjoyment, and the play is clean and uplifting, comic, serious and fine. All the characters are strong and noble. The pure critic as well as the employment lover will express the same favorable opinion of the play when it will be staged on May first. There will be only one performance, that is on May first. The full program will be published later.

CHARLEY WHITE

WHITE LOSING PRESTIGE WITH BOXING FANS.

Fight fans are but human, and being human are fickle. Charley White, the Chicago boy whose famed left hook was the subject of much conversation in flaccid circles last year, is fast losing his drawing power with the public, especially in the east. White has done little fighting worth mentioning this year and as a result, Benny Leonard is overshadowing him as a contender for the crown of Freddie Welsh, Denver and Kansas City Clubs are anxious to stage a decision bout between White and Leonard, but it is said that White is not anxious to meet Leonard over the decision route, so things look propitious for a ten round mill in New York—with a large gate, preferably.

Rosendale on the Screen.

"Autumn," the photoplay that was made in Rosendale last fall, has been released and is making a hit. Violet Mersereau stars as the heroine and Lieut. Percy Richards, the Swedish basso, known in New York as "The Man in White," is the leading man. The scene is laid in the northwest, but Rosendale scenery was found well adapted to the purpose of portraying the Canadian wilds. One of the scenes in the advertising leaflet shows the hero and heroine under the trees at the old fording place on the outskirts of Rosendale village, near the site of the old Hardenbergh mansion in which Gen. George Washington once dined as the guest of Col. Hardenbergh.

Boy Hurt by Motor Truck.

Raymond Canfield, aged nine years, was knocked over by a motor delivery truck Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock while playing with some other boys in the street near the central postoffice. The driver of the machine stopped and picked the lad up, taking him to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Canfield, 30 Grand street. The boy was badly bruised about the head and body and was unconscious for a time, being slightly delirious today. The truck belonged to a brick manufacturer named Rose, the police said, and the boy ran into the machine.

Supply of Fat a Necessity.

Fats, which form about 15 per cent of the weight of the body, are found in meats, vegetable products, butter and other dairy foods. It is largely through an excess of fat that protein is stored in the body, to be drawn upon when needed.

An Unsolved Puzzle of Biology.

It is one of the innumerable puzzles of biology that the number of eggs a bird lays seems to have such small influence on the abundance of the species. A recent term lays one egg, rarely two; a gull three, a skimmer four to six. The gull eats the eggs of the other two, especially of the tern; as far as we know all have the same foes, yet the abundance of the birds is in inverse ratio to the number of their eggs. Of course, there is an explanation, but we cannot even guess at it yet. With this, as with so many other scientific questions, all we can say is, with Huxley, that we are not afraid to announce that we do not know.—Theodore Roosevelt in Scribner's Magazine.

More Appropriate.

Sir George Alexander's original name was Samson before he went on the stage, and apropos of this fact a good story is told. A well known theatrical manager was once discussing Sir George with a friend. "By the way, Alexander isn't his right name, is it?" inquired the friend. "No," said the manager. "It used to be Samson. It was a pity to change the name of Samson to Alexander." "Oh, but Alexander conquered the world, you know," insisted the other. "Yes," answered the manager, "but Samson is a more appropriate theatrical name. Have you forgotten that Samson was the first man who brought down the house?"—London Mail.

Ireland's Patroness.

The first day of February is the anniversary of St. Brigid, or Bridget, the "patroness" of Ireland and of Fleet street. She was the beautiful daughter of an Irish bard, and her story seems to have fired the Celtic imagination wherever the early Irish missionaries wandered in western Europe, from Cologne to Seville, churches or shrines will be found dedicated to her honor, and wherever the "rites of Erin" are performed the name of Bridget marks a woman of Irish race. The spire of St. church in Fleet street has been repeatedly struck by lightning, but it remains one of the three tallest steeples in London.—London Chronicle.

Booth's Last Stage Speech.
The last words uttered on the stage by Edwin Booth were, "Ladies and gentlemen, I thank you." "Hamlet" was the play, and the Brooklyn Academy of Music was the scene of that historic "oration." Mr. Booth delivered it in response to something like the enthusiastic call for him before the curtain.

Snails as a Delicacy.
The French merchants of Paris first tasted snails when visiting the vineyards of Burgundy for wine. They brought the first baskets of them to Paris by coach from Auvergne. By 1850 the advent of the railroad had brought the industry to quite a development, and markets were opened up in France, Italy and Spain for snails.

SUSSEX SURVIVOR TELLS EXPERIENCE

Does Not Know if Ship Was Hit by a Torpedo or Struck a Mine—General Opinion Was That It Was a Torpedo.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, April 14.—The first survivor of the Sussex disaster to reach the United States arrived here today on the American liner St. Paul. He is Edward H. Huxley, president of the United States Rubber Export Company.

"I could not say positively whether the ship was blown up by a mine or torpedoed by a submarine," said Mr. Huxley. "The general opinion on board though was that the ship had been attacked without warning by a German submarine."

"The disaster happened about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon when the Sussex was half way between Folkestone and Dieppe. (Previous reports, both official and unofficial, said that the explosion occurred about 2:30.)

"I was standing on the port side of the ship at the time. Suddenly there was a terrific blast which tore away the whole bow of the ship and hurled debris and water high in the air. Much of the wreckage fell back upon the deck, injuring many persons. I saw the severed bow of the ship float away like a cork and then sink."

"The explosion was on the starboard side of the ship forward and many persons that were in that part of the ship were killed outright or thrown into the sea."

"The wireless outfit on the vessel remained in working order and the operator continued to send out calls for help after the explosion, but it was nine hours before a British torpedo boat destroyer appeared on the scene. In the meantime we had lowered boats and many of the people who had been thrown into the water were taken on board the boats."

"On board the destroyer was the warrant officer of the Sussex, who declared that a number of the passengers on the channel liner had told him they saw the wake of a torpedo."

"I have a letter from Captain Thomas Carroll, embarkation officer at Boulogne, France, which says in part: 'The poor Sussex lies beached. I saw the body of a poor woman on

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 14.—Back in the by-gone days of light harness racing, Robert Bonard, a famous horseman of that era, expressed the opinion of his generation when he said:

"No gentleman will drive a pacer."

But times have changed. Once unwanted, once classed as the riff-raff of the horse world, the strictly pacing animal has come into popular favor. Not only do gentlemen own pacers, but they spend fortunes to acquire the speedy "wrigglers."

No better illustration of the extremes to which horse lovers will go in these days to own a speedy pacer can be shown than that involving William, 1:58 1/2, the Indian Whirlwind. C. K. G. Billings, a multi-millionaire New Yorker, parted with $35,000 last summer to secure possession of the pacing stallion, and trotting experts claim he got a bargain.

Twenty-five years or so ago when horsemen were prejudiced against pure pacers, a horse of William's caliber would have brought only a thousand or two. The price paid for William is the record for pacers—but it is one that won't endure for long. Horsemen are coming to regard the pacer almost as highly as the trotter.

Why the change in sentiment?

Well, the pacer of today isn't as slovenly in his gait as the pacer of years ago. The pacer of twenty and thirty years ago was a queer gaited animal. He wiggled—almost wobbled—from side to side, and as a veteran turfman once put it: "a pacer, coming into the stretch, was a disgusting vulgar sight." They called them "rakers."

To learn the why and wherefores of the "reformation" of the pacer, we put the question to S. S. Toman, editor of the Trotter & Pacer Magazine, who has been identified with light harness racing for a quarter of a century.

"Breeding is responsible," Toman said. "Turfman of the past 25 and 30 years have done everything possible to stamp out the gait of the pacer of the other day. They have succeeded in a wonderful way, because the pacer of the present time moves almost as steadily and straight as the pure trotter. Looking at a free-legged pacer, of William's type, as he rounds the turn, it is hard to tell him from a trotter."

"Many trotting horses are natural pacers, even though the sire and dam be trotters. The pacing gait is inborn in all harness horses. It is a free and easy one, and the horses find it restful. Oftentimes when trotters are called back after a false start, they will drop into a pace until it is time for them to turn and face the starter again. "Nancy Hanks," one of the greatest trotters of all time, often needed in her joggings. She liked the pace as much as the other famous trotters, but she never forgot herself in a race. She never tried to drop into pace, which action means disqualification for a trotter in that particular event. Every world's champion trotter has been double-gaited—that is they could be made to trot or pace."

"As soon as colts or fillies are old enough to be put into harness, they are taught to trot. That is harder for them, but it is far prettier—and trotting is the standard. Most of the young horses soon learn to trot. Others won't simply learn. In the other days when it was seen that a young horse wouldn't trot, his owner became disgusted with him and either sold or gave him away. They wouldn't keep him."

"But now, although the first plan of all horse owners is to teach youngsters to trot, they don't lose patience with them if they won't. They keep them and send them into the pacing events. Look at our pacers on the big tracks, were rarities. But it is different now. They are almost as numerous, and the stakes almost as large, as they are for trotters. The pacer has come into his own."

Billings expects William to smash some of the existing pacing records. He is grooming him now to beat the world's record to wagon of 1:57 1/4, made by Dan Patch, which has withstood the onslaught of the pacers for something like ten years.

William, in the opinion of horsemen, is just nearing his ultimate speed and Billings may loosen him this season in an effort to fracture some of the "unbeatable" marks that have stood for years. Among them are:

1 1/2 mile, made in .56 by Dan Patch, in Memphis, Tenn., in 1903.
1 mile, made in 1:55 1/4 by Dan Patch in 1905 in St. Paul, which is the world's record, as well as the stallion record.

1 mile on half track, in 2:02 3/4, made by Dictum I. in Goshen, N. Y., in 1912.

Economic Reasons.

SUMMARY OF K.H.S. VARSITY BASKETBALL

There can be no student in the high school who does not speak of the school's athletic record without a touch of pride, and although athletics are by no means the main issue in school, still when every team shows an unparalleled success, when in football the boys bring home a no defeat season, and the championship of half the state, when the varsity basketball ties with a neighboring town for the championship of the section, when the Midget basketball team does the same, and when last, but not least, the girls' basketball team ends up with a no defeat season, and the championship of the Hudson valley, then athletics may well be given some credit for making K. H. S. renowned.

After the football season closed last fall there was a lull in activities for a month or so, and then still flushed with the pride of championship honors, the high school athletes turned their attention to basketball.

All knew that the team would have the services of seasoned amateur players who had distinguished themselves on other teams in this city but few if any anticipated a reputation of such unparalleled success as greeted the football squad earlier in the year.

When the call for candidates was issued about fifty fellows responded, and among them were Palisi, Wheeler, Johnson, Dolson, Joyce, Kiernan and Riskey, all of whom had already played a good deal of amateur ball. Paced by this mass of material, Coach Schumaker decided to divide these fellows up into separate squads so that he could give better attention to each player.

Soon the winners began to make themselves noticeable and Johnnie Palisi was elected captain, and shortly after this Mr. Moulton appointed John Church manager of the team.

He instantly began to hustle around and soon had a pretty fair schedule to which he from time to time added more games.

The season was opened on January 6th in a game with Saugerties. Dolson and Kiernan played forwards, Johnson center, and Joyce and Palisi guards. These players kept these positions in practically all the games of the season. Of the two forwards, Dolson was the greatest point getter, and piled up a greater total than any other man on the team. He rendered his greatest service to the team in the early part of the season before the five had played with one another long enough to do as good team work as they later did. At this period of the season Dolson was a wonder, but some of his good fortune seemed to leave him later in the year. His mate Kiernan did not gain as many points as Chet, but better still, he was cool headed, calm and sure. He seldom starred but always did his share and more.

At center the team had as good a player as they could hope for, Harold Johnson. He often was pitted against a giant, but seldom did his opponent get the best of him. He also was not a flashy player but Johnnie had played end in football and knew how to break up the interference and could take his end at pass work.

The guards, Captain J. Palisi, and John Joyce were entirely different types of players. Both were speedy, but Joyce always found himself under the basket of his opponents where he scored the second greatest number of points of any man on the team, while the captain broad of chest, and stout of body, was the conservative party on the team. He always stayed where he could keep his eye on the local team's goal, and whenever one of the opponents managed to break away from the rest of the team they immediately found Johnnie Palisi was headed his way with all sails set, and a good wind behind him. The captain didn't make many points but the unnamed whole lot for the opposing teams.

Wheeler, Silverman, and Riskey were the three who found themselves on the firing line the most, and they often gave the regular five a close run for their positions. Duncan, Relyea, Howard, and Betts were of great service during the season, and deserve much credit for their services.

Then comes Coach Schumaker last, but not least by any means. His untiring efforts speak for themselves, and his care in seeing that every player was well tried out is quite noteworthy.

As a result of this season's work basketball "K"s have been awarded to Dolson, Kiernan, Johnson, Palisi, Joyce, Silverman, and Riskey.

All the regular teams is expected to be back at the game next season, as none of them are seniors or post-graduates. Wheeler and Riskey will probably graduate but all in all an even more successful season may be hoped for next year.

"Babe" Adams, the Pirates twirler, put his name in the hall of fame. He held the Cardinals to one hit.

Did some one say I couldn't hit—Benny Kauff. Look at my average of 1.000 yesterday.

It looks as if the Red Sox have not lost their world championship form the way they are going after the Athletics.

Ty Cobb tried hard to bat his team to victory. But Cobb can only bat for himself. The Tigers staked a five run rally in the ninth, but it was not enough.

The younger batsmen are laughing at Honus today. The "Flying Dutchman" batted nil while his younger swatsmen hit the pill hard.

If it rains much longer the Yanks may have to face Walter Johnson again—and you know what that spells.

Looks as if Tesreau will be McGraw's mainstay this year. The "Ozark Bear" was invincible against the Phillies.
